

MESSAGE FROM ASPC PRESIDENT DALE HENWOOD

Are you ready for the ASPC 10th International Forum on Elite Sport in Durban, South Africa and hosted by Prime Human Performance Institute?

One of the critical tasks of a leader is to develop their “bench.” Leaders have a responsibility to invest in and develop others and ensure they create the conditions for others to flourish.

For our business to grow and strengthen we need to have a focus on the continual development of our people. We need to ensure that both the present and future of our business and our Institutes/Centres is secure.

Leadership skills can be taught and learned and they should not be left to chance. The biennial ASPC Forum is one great opportunity to not only develop your own skills but also to develop and expand the leadership skills of others in your organization.

So plan on attending our 10th Forum, connect with your high performance friends from across the globe. Our Forums have been growing and improving every year. Let’s come together to share knowledge and help each other succeed. See you in Durban, it is worth the trip.

Looking forward to meeting new colleagues and to reconnecting with others August 23-26, 2017.

ASPC & OLYMPIC SOLIDARITY

In early May, ASPC Secretary General Josep Escoda and Treasurer Tracy Lamb met with the leadership of the IOC’s Olympic Solidarity to discuss our continued partnership in supporting coaches and athletes at our Sport Performance Centers.

Message of support from South African NOC (SASCOC) President Gideon Sam

In the constantly evolving world we are always looking at ways of ensuring that South Africa is part of the bigger global picture in the quest for sporting excellence.

As economies the world over feel the pinch, this, the 10th International Forum on Elite Sport is just one way of doing exactly that.

It's a major coup for South African sport that the city of Durban is hosting this prestigious event which was first held in Sydney, Australia 16 years ago. When we consider that previous hosts include Beijing, Barcelona, Paris, Montreal and Rio de Janeiro it's indeed an honour. Remember, all those cities are previous hosts of the Olympic Games.

Not only is this coming together of the world's top sporting brains an honour for South Africa but also for the entire African continent as this is the first time that Africa will host the International Forum on Elite Sport.

There's no doubt that this event is going to filter all the way down through South African sport and matters like athletes' development should duly benefit from the robust and intense sharing of global sporting knowledge and expertise.

I urge all stakeholders to immerse themselves for the entire three days of activities as this forum offers a truly unique opportunity to make a meaningful difference to sport in our rainbow nation.

UPDATED BYLAWS TO INCLUDE A NEW EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT POSITION

The ASPC Governance working group will present an update to the ASPC that will include a new category in the individual membership group as well as the addition of one new member to the ASPC Executive Committee.

The new key position will be that of a Vice President to serve on the Executive Committee. The main functions of the Vice President will be to assist the Association's President with the day-to-day operations and to represent the President at functions he or she is unable to attend. The Executive Vice President will also assist all the Continental Vice Presidents with projects or issues they have in their respected areas.

This position did not exist in our previous structure and we have now grown. The current board feels the need to add this position to help us to continue to provide service to all our members around the world.

All nominations to serve on the ASPC board can be found on the ASPC website under "bids to hold a board position." In order to apply you must be a Category A or B member in good standing.

More information on this and other updates to the Bylaws will be presented during the upcoming Forum in Durban.
